French Cooking Classes

Originally a five acre private estate that has now been developed into a commercial establishment. You won't find our classes to be held in the cold and industrial type of cooking class kitchen...we take our cues from the warm and homey French "manoirs" in the Loire Valley of France.

Our classes are unique culinary experiences for those interested in a non-threatening hands-on cooking environment under the guidance of one of innovative chefs. Our focus is on French "CLASSICAL" cuisine, compared to French Haut Cuisine.. We welcome our guests to meander on our grounds and visit our "potager" vegetable garden

French Macaron Cookies

These little cookie delights are all the rage in France and now we have them too! Our bite size French macaron cookies come in three assorted flavors to a box: Chocolate, Vanilla, Lemon and Lavender. 24 French Macaron Cookies for a box for $30.00. # French Cooking School

Our heritage is French, where we honor old country values,. We believe in the "old country" belief that food and wine are inseparable companions. It's a shame, but somehow food and wine became separated in this country. Fortunately, knowledgeable writers, restauranteurs and wine lovers have been doing

Everything possible to increase the awareness of the natural placement of a bottle of wine on the table accompanying a meal. Yes, to truly appreciate a good meal or a good bottle of wine you do need the other, after all wine is a food, meant to be enjoyed as an integral part of both everyday and special occasion meals. We think the most effective way to spread this message is by creating delicious food and wine experiences here at L'Auberge Edge of Seattle, French Specialty Cooking School.
